The object of this volume is to determine if possible what portraits belong to the Baziliologia, as issued by Henry Holland in 1618; to show the history of these portraits; to note their appearance in other books, down to 1662; and to give a brief survey of other similar engraved English portraits of the early seventeenth century.

The study of these early engravings is most interesting. In numbers, the record is an extensive one. They show us the effigies of the Royal, distinguished, or otherwise prominent personages of the day, as well as the conventional representations of people of earlier times. Some are beautiful specimens of the engraver's art, while others have a charm of their own, even where they are of little artistic value.

The riddle of the Baziliologia which I have attempted to solve is not of great importance. It makes little practical difference whether twenty-six or two hundred and twenty-six portraits can be allocated to the book as originally issued; but it is of importance to have a knowledge of the engraved portraiture of the period, as it brings to our attention much that is interesting and instructive in connection with the sovereigns and other prominent people of the day, gives us an insight into the history of the times, and makes us familiar with the work of an important school of English and anglicized engravers; and most of us will agree that a riddle is worth solving, simply because it is a riddle, even if the solution adds little to the sum of human knowledge.

His Majesty King George V has graciously given me permission, through the Hon. John W. Fortesque, M.V.O., his Librarian at Windsor Castle, to reproduce and use as a frontispiece hereto, the title-page of the 1630 edition of the Baziliōlogia: it is the only specimen I know of.

My thanks are also due to Mr. Fortesque for the courtesies extended to me in connection with my examination of His Majesty’s copy of the Baziliōlogia; to the Trustees of the British Museum for permission to reproduce the title-page (Plate II), and several portraits from the copies in the Library and the Department of Prints and Drawings; to Lady Brooke, of Armitage Bridge House, near Huddersfield, for permission to reproduce a number of portraits from the copy belonging to the late Sir Thomas Brooke. Also to the authorities of the Bodleian Library, Oxford; to Mr. T. W. Jackson, M.A., Keeper of the “Hope Portrait Collection,” Oxford; and Mr. Beverly Chew of New York, for allowing me to inspect their copies. Also to M. Godefroy Mayer, Paris, for sending me a complete descriptive list of the royal portraits in the copy preserved in the Bibliothèque Nationale; to Mr. A. M. Hind of the Department of Prints and Drawings, British Museum, who has kindly read the proofs and made valuable suggestions; and to Messrs. Ellis, London, for obtaining for me facilities for examining many portraits of the period.
INTRODUCTORY NOTE

Although duly noted in the text, special mention should be made of Sir Sidney Colvin’s “Early Engraving and Engravers in England,” the catalogue of portraits therein by Mr. Hind, and his notes on the Bazilialogia; Mr. Malcolm C. Salaman’s “The Old Engravers in England,” and Mr. A. M. Hind’s “Catalogue of Portraits,” included in Sir Sidney Colvin’s book above mentioned, and published separately by the Trustees of the British Museum, as described in the Bibliography on page xii hereof.

LIST OF ILLUSTRATIONS

The photogravure of the title-page in the Royal Library is from a photograph made by Messrs. J. Russell and Sons, Windsor; and that of number II is from a photograph of the British Museum copy, made by Mr. Donald Macbeth, London, who executed both of the photogravure plates. The photographs for illustrations numbered VI, 1, 15, 29, 33, 35, 36, 37, and 58 were likewise made by Mr. Macbeth.

All the other illustrations are from photographs made by the author, from books and prints in his own collection, excepting numbers 39 to 45 inclusive, which are from the copy of the Baziliologia belonging to the late Sir Thomas Brooke, and numbers 8, 23, 27, and 32, which are from specimens in the British Museum.

TITLE-PAGE OF THE FIRST OR 1618 EDITION

From the copy in the British Museum
In the last few years of the sixteenth century, and the first half of the seventeenth, several series of engraved portraits of the sovereigns of England were published. All of them are scarce, and some are excessively rare. The most important is the:

Baziliologia | A Booke of Kings | Beeing | The true and liuely Effigies | of all our English Kings from | the Conquest vntill this present: | With their severall Coats of | Armes, Impresses and Devises | and a brief Chronologie of | their lieues and deaths. | Elegantly grauen in Copper. | Printed for H. Holland, and | are to be sold by Comp. | Holland ouer against | th' exchange | 1618.

A photogravure of the title-page of the first edition (1618), the same size as the original, is shown opposite this page; and one of the second edition (1630) is used as a frontispiece.

Very few copies of the Baziliologia are known—not one is in its original binding—no two are alike—none can be considered complete, and most of the copies contain many plates which probably do not form part of the series as first issued.

I shall endeavour to determine the number of portraits comprising the original series, to trace their history through the various editions, and to give a list of the several states in which they appeared either separately, bound in sets, or as book-illustrations.

The portraits as a rule have little artistic value; there is no text accompanying them in their original state, so far as is known, and I have not been able to discover any contemporary or other seventeenth-century references to the Baziliælogia. Nevertheless its history, so far as it can be unravelled, as well as that of its successors, containing impressions from the same plates, is interesting and worth recording. It is the most valuable book of engraved English portraits, although the volume containing the set from which Fig. 60, on page 145 hereof, is taken is also very scarce. Its title indicates that it only included portraits of Kings from the Conquest to the then present period, that is to say from William the Conqueror to James I inclusive; but there can be no doubt that the word Kings included Queens, Mary and Elizabeth, and, as will be shown, two Queens Consort as well—Anne Boleyn and Anne of Denmark.

It is possible that the book had a much broader scope, as will appear from the following quotation from the sale catalogue of engravings, principally portraits, belonging to Lieut.-Colonel Durrant, issued by Messrs. S. Leigh Sotheby and Co. in May 1847:

Early British Portraits
intitled
The Baziliælogia
or
Book of Kings and Eminent Men During the Reigns of Elizabeth and James I.

This extremely rare and interesting Series of Portraits is esteemed the most valuable Book of Prints existing. They were originally published as separate publications, at different periods of the reigns of Elizabeth and James I., but were occasionally sold as one series, with a title prefixed entitled, "Baziliælogia, or a Book of Kings, being the true and lively Effigies of all our English Kings," &c., London. 1618.

So rare is this collection that but five or six copies have been discovered, and they materially varying both in number of plates and beauty of impression,—the most complete was the celebrated De la Bere volume [see Appendix B hereof] sold by Mr. Christie on March 27, 1811,—which contained 152 Portraits, and produced £601 15s. Another was the Fife Volume [see Appendix C hereof] sold by Mr. Stewart on February 14, 1812, which contained 153 plates. [This contained 159 plates.]
HISTORICAL SKETCH

Two or three other copies have since been discovered, but with a far less number of plates. The whole of these volumes have been cut up and sold separately—the rarity therefore of anything like a perfect series is proportionally increased. It is to be remarked, that while each of these volumes contained some fine impressions, others were very indifferent; and so are the few volumes still existing in their original form, of which there are two in the Bodleian Library (varying in the number of plates,) and one in the Bibliothèque at Paris.

The present Collection was formed out of the sales of the above mentioned volumes, and others procured from the celebrated Collections of Portraits formed by Bindley, Sykes, Dowdeswell, Towneley, Horace Walpole, &c., and may justly be considered the most beautiful existing, both in regard to the brilliancy of impression and purity of preservation. Many of the plates have been frequently changed, when a finer impression was to be procured, and that without regard to expence [sic],—the series having cost Col. Darrant upwards of £500.

They are also highly valuable in connection with the history of English art, being the first published British portraits, and chiefly by native artists.

In Appendix A will be found a full description of the portraits in this collection.

There are many mis-statements in the above extract, e.g., these are not the first published British portraits, and the two copies in the Bodleian, and the one in the Bibliothèque, are not in their original form, although one of the Bodleian copies is undoubtedly in practically its original condition, and in an almost contemporary binding.

The Delabere sale took place in March 1811. It included the title-page, the twenty-six original Baziliologia portraits as hereinafter determined, Edward the Black Prince, and John of Gaunt. After these items the following note occurs:

The Twenty-nine first Lots are all of the first Impressions, before the Plates were re-touched and printed on the back; and are extremely rare, particularly with the Frontispiece.

In addition to the above the collection included one hundred and twenty-three other portraits of the Basiliologia type, many of which sold for very high prices, as will be seen in Appendix B, where I have given a complete list from the sale catalogue, with prices and names of purchasers.

The catalogue states that the book had been preserved in the Delabere family for one hundred and fifty years, which gives it a pedigree from 1661, and the above note seems to indicate that the compiler was of the opinion that the first twenty-nine lots, including the frontispiece (title-page), belonged together. There is nothing conclusive in this, and, as hereinafter shown, it is probable that the Black Prince and John of Gaunt do not belong to the original series.

The Fife sale took place in February 1812. It included the title-page, a complete set of the original plates, and many others of the Baziliəlogia type, making a total of one hundred and fifty-nine.

The title-page of the catalogue states that the contents of the book was collected in the reign of Charles I, and had been preserved in the family of a noble lord. Also that many of the prints were not in the Delabere collection, and that some were supposed to be unique. Some of the prices were very high.

A complete list, with prices and names of purchasers, is given in Appendix C.

This and the Delabere sales are the only ones I know of which are devoted solely to the Baziliəlogia and portraits of that type, and it is for this reason that I have thought it worth while to include Appendices B and C. The catalogues themselves are very rare, copies of both are in the British Museum.

Mr. Walter F. Tiffin, in his interesting little volume published in London, 1866, entitled "Gossip about Portraits, Principally Engraved Portraits," refers to the Baziliəlogia in two places as follows:

In most cases the collector had to form his collection by the purchase of individual prints, but there were two or three parcels of portraits published in sets, some years before Lombart, Houbraken, &c., brought out their several well-known series. The earliest of these was the Baziliəlogia, or Book of Kings, of which the title, engraved by Elstracke, runs thus:

[Title is quoted in full.]

It is a folio, and in the first instance it contained only the portraits of the English Sovereigns, engraved by Elstracke, which are generally of little value, but subsequently those of eminent persons of the time (which had been published separately by Compton Holland, Sudbury and Humble, L. Lisle, Jenner, and others,) were added, and in this state the book is now of great value, varying of course according to the number, rarity, and quality of the prints, for no two copies that have appeared for sale have been alike. From one sold by Sotheby in 1822, and another by Stewart and Wheatley in 1827, there might be enumerated thirty-two portraits. We can scarcely judge of the value of the book, differing as it does in the number and state of the prints it contains; and the few copies that have occurred for sale have been broken up, and the prints sold separately. One of the most important of these was the Delabere set, sold by Christie, in Pall Mall, in March 1811, and which, sold separately, altogether realized nearly £600. This copy was obtained in a remarkable manner, for the particulars of which I am indebted to the courtesy of the eminent and respected printseller, Mr. Dominic Colnaghi. In the year 1808, a gentleman called and showed to the late Mr. Colnaghi, a book of Portraits, for which a dealer had just offered him £50. Thinking, from the apparently liberal offer, that the book might be worth more, he had bought it for Mr. C.’s opinion. The latter submitted it to his son, then a young man, who had, however, made the study of portraits a favourite pursuit, and Mr. Dominic immediately discovered it to be the copy of the Baziliologia, described by Granger as belonging to the Delabere family; and after a careful inspection valued it at from £350 to £600. The proprietor was, of course, well pleased at the result, but was not then inclined to part with it. About three years after, however, he wrote to Mr. Colnaghi, stating that his wife requiring her drawing-room to be refurnished and embellished, and the upholsterer’s estimate being £350, he might, if so inclined, have the book at that price, which offer was accordingly accepted. The result was as above stated, thus establishing the correctness of Mr. Dominic Colnaghi’s judgment in a remarkable degree.

The second reference is as follows:

In the beginning of this chapter I have detailed an interesting anecdote, communicated by Mr. Dom. Colnaghi, regarding the Delabere copy of the Baziliologia. To the kindness of the same gentleman I am indebted for a no less interesting fact regarding another copy of the work which fell into his hands. About the year 1827, his father, being in Paris, bought on the Boulevards, from an “Etalleur,” a volume of English Portraits for thirty francs. He immediately sent it over to his son Mr. Dominic, who, on showing it to a friend of his, an eminent book-seller, was rather surprised and mortified to find that it exactly corresponded with a list the latter had formerly taken of the contents of the Baziliologia in the Bibliothèque du Roi at Paris. Not wishing under the circumstances, to keep the book, Mr. Colnaghi consulted the late Lord Dover, and Mr. Thomas Grenville—the latter of whom however would willingly have given 300 guineas for it—and the book was eventually returned. The Librarian, after a great deal of difficulty, acknowledged that the book had been lent to a “Great Personage,” whose servant had stolen it. At a subsequent period Mr. C. was presented with a silver medal, bearing the portrait of King Louis Philippe, and on the obverse this inscription: “M. Colnaghi. La Bibliothèque Royale reconnaissante de son désintérësment, 1836.” This copy consisted of ninety-nine portraits, including many foreign personages by Elstracke and others.
The three engravers of the respective portraits which undoubtedly belong to the Baziliωlogia proper were:

Renold Elstrack,
Francis Delaram, and
Simon van de Passe.

If, however, John of Gaunt's portrait can be considered one of the series, then G(eorge) Y(ates), the engraver thereof, must also be mentioned. In this connection it is to be observed that in the Brooke collection (hereinafter described) there is a portrait of "Gregori the IV," on which this engraver's name is "Geor. Yate." It is also to be observed that the Type C portrait of Queen Elizabeth (as hereinafter mentioned) was engraved by W. Kip, but his name was erased before this type appeared in the Baziliωlogia series. The first three are the only ones to whom it is necessary to devote much space.

In "Calcographiana: The Printsellers Chronicle and Collectors guide to the knowledge and value of Engraved British Portraits by James Caulfield" (London 1814) is the following:

RENO LD OR REGINALD EL STRACKE, 1620

The works of this Artist are very unequal in point of merit, many being stiff and wholly devoid of taste in execution, while others are equal to the best works of the Passe's; indeed when we consider the very low prices booksellers are sometimes under the necessity of offering engravers for the embellishment of books, the wonder in a measure will cease. The greatest of Elstracke's works is the "Basiologia, or the true and lively effigies of all our English Kings, from the Conquest to the present time," dated 1618. He sometimes substituted the initials of his name R. E. when he did not choose to write it at full length.

The Portraits of the Kings have been used for three distinct works, first for the Basiologia, in which state they will sell at an average of one guinea. In the second state they accompany a brief account of the English Monarchs, under the title of Florus Anglicus, a thin folio, worth three guineas. The last work they were used for, was Martin's Chronicle of English Kings, which now sells for about two guineas: in both the last, the plates are printed on the letter press.

This of course is not correct, as the first book, with text, in which they appeared was Martyn's (1628), and only copies appeared in "Florus Anglicus." This will be commented on further hereinafter. In the Special
HISTORICAL SKETCH

Spring Number of “The Studio” (London) 1908, the 6th section is entitled “The First Century of English Engraving,” by Malcolm C. Salaman.

Elstrack is therein mentioned as follows:

Although Renold Elstrack, a Londoner born of Flemish parents, and a pupil of Rogers, began engraving in 1598, his principal work was done in James I’s reign, when the increasing demand for the royal, noble or scandalous persons of the day kept his graver continuously but inartistically busy. . . . That his work was in high favour with the booksellers is proved by his title-pages to King James’s works and Raleigh’s “History of the World,” as well as his association with Compton Holland’s Baziliwlogia, a collection of small royal portraits in oval ornamental borders of an arbitrary pattern, introduced by Simon Van de Passe, a type of print which remained monotonously in fashion for many a year.

Mr. Salaman’s interesting volume, published in 1906, entitled “The Old Engravers of England,” contains the following:

A more prolific engraver than either of the two foregoing [Rogers and Cockson] was Renold (or Reginald) Elstrack, who, with a neat though undistinguished style, has left us many interesting records of the futile reign of James I and its graceless fashions. Son of Joseph Elstrack, a glass-worker from Liège, who had been long settled in London, he was born in the parish of St. Thomas the Apostle, in January 1571 . . . Young Renold became a pupil of Rogers, and devoted himself to engraving. His earliest signed plate is dated 1598 . . . his reputation was so considerable that, when Compton Holland was bringing out his famous Baziliwlogia in 1618, he commissioned Elstrack to engrave the title-page, and nearly a score of portraits with their cumbrous borders. . . . Elstrack’s portraits were his most important gifts to posterity . . . we lose sight of our engraver in 1625.

The most complete account of the Baziliwlogia and its engravers is to be found in Sir Sidney Colvin’s “Early Engraving and Engravers in England” (London 1905), and the appendix thereto by Mr. A. M. Hind.

It is mentioned that Elstrack usually signed his name Renold (sometimes Raygnald), and his surname Elstracke, Elstrake, or Elstracke. That he was the son of Joselphe Elstrage of Lukeland, and his wife Arnold. Lukeland means the Province of Liège. His father was a glazier.

Sir Sidney then says:

About 1615-16 there came into fashion in England, perhaps through the influence of the Van de Passes, a new type of engraved portrait more or less uniform in size and character, and differing from those which had been previously in the market. The size is from seven to eight inches high, and from four to five inches wide; a white band is regularly left at the foot for some lines of inscription, rhyming or otherwise; the likeness is included in a plain oval border, inscribed in capitals with the name and title of the personage, generally in Latin; and this again in a rectangle, the spandrils and side spaces between the oval and the rectangle being decorated with comparatively simple roll-work mixed with trophies, scutcheons, and heraldic or other animals (the old elaborate Tudor compartment of mixed strapwork and grotesque, borrowed from the Flemish pattern-books, had begun now to be out of date). Portraits in this form were engraved in an almost identical style by various hands, especially Elstrack, Delaram and Simon Van der Passe, and were put on the market by several different publishers, as Sudbury and Humble, Compton Holland, William Peake, Roger Daniell, and Thomas Jenner. The form may possibly have been preferred by the print-sellers by reason of its suitability for use in books, and with a view to supplying booksellers with a stock of any portrait that might be required for binding up with a forthcoming work. In this place we shall regularly speak of it as the Baziliælogia form, because in it were engraved all the portraits of English royalties collected in the volume so entitled. This collection belongs to the year 1618, and contains prints by Elstrack, Delaram and Simon de Passe. . . . The book is generally quoted as being historically the first collection of portraits in line-engraving ever published in England. And so it may be, but one must not forget another, though quite insignificant collection of twenty-five anonymous plates, also of English Kings, issued in the same year with sets of verses, by John Taylor the water-poet, under the title, A briefe remembrance of all the English monarchs, from the Norman Conquest, until this present. This does not repeat the Baziliælogia portraits, but rests rather on a much earlier woodcut Book containing the true portraiture of the Kings of England collected by T.T., printed for John de Beauchesne, 1597.

This latter book will be mentioned again hereinafter, and the portrait of James I from a set of twenty-five anonymous plates in one of the editions of John Taylor’s “Brief Remembrance,” is reproduced in Fig. 60.

Simon van de Passe, probably the eldest son of Crispin van de Passe the elder, was born in or about 1595. He began his career at the age of seventeen with the portrait of Prince Henry at lance exercise.

Most of his portraits are in the Baziliælogia style.

As Elstrack and Delaram did not work in this style before his arrival in 1615 or 1616, it is generally supposed that he introduced it into England.
HISTORICAL SKETCH

His Baziliwlogia portraits are:
   Edward VI.
   James I.
Also if they can be considered as belonging to the series:
   Anne of Denmark, and
   Charles, Prince of Wales.
He died in 1647.
Associated with Elstrack and Simon van de Passe in working for Henry Holland on the Baziliwlogia, and generally coupled with them by writers on Early English Engraving, is Francis (or Franciscus, Francisco, or Francesco) Delaram (or De Laram, Dellame or Delaramo).
   His Baziliwlogia portraits are:
       Henry VIII. Type A.
       Mary.
       Elizabeth. Type A.
Also, if it can be considered,
   Henry, Prince of Wales.
Some of the portraits in the Baziliwlogia do not contain the name of the engraver, and some omit the publisher's name as well. It is safe to assume, however, that Elstracke is the engraver of all the anonymous portraits of kings.
No publisher other than Compton Holland is mentioned on these portraits in the Baziliwlogia state, prior to Henry VIII, excepting in the case of John of Gaunt, where Roger Daniell was the publisher.
Beginning with Henry VIII, the following names appear:
   Sudbury and Humble: Henry VIII. Type A.
   Henry Balaam: Henry VIII. Type B.
   G. L.: Edward VI. First state.
   Sudbury and Humble: Edward VI. Second state. (This is the Baziliwlogia state.)
   Sudbury and Humble: Elizabeth. Types A and B.
   The others, after Henry VIII, bear the name of Compton Holland, including Type C of Elizabeth.
Certain of the plates in the state next after that in which they appeared in the 1628 edition of Martyn's "Historie," bear the address of Thomas Geele "at the dagger in lumbard street." In the first issue with this address the plates are unnumbered; in the second they have, so far as known, the same numbers as those in the 1638 edition of Martin’s “Historie.”

The only ones I have seen or heard of with this address are the following:

Unnumbered:

- Title-page. Dated 1630. Windsor.
- Mary. Levis.
- Elizabeth. Type C. Levis.
- Anne Boleyn. Windsor and collection of Duke of Buccleuch.

Numbered:

A series from William I, Type B (No. 1), to Elizabeth, Type C (No. 23), inclusive, excepting John (No. 7) and Edward VI (No. 21), and the following duplicates, all in my own collection:

No. 23. Elizabeth. Type C.

Also Henry VIII, Type B (No. 20), in Sutherland collection in the Bodleian Library at Oxford.

The series first mentioned I found inserted in vol. iii of Holinshed’s Chronicles (edition of 1586-7), and had thus been carefully preserved. Henry VIII in this series is Type B.

All of these are excellent impressions, yet they show some signs of wear and retouching.

It is probable that Geele issued with the above-mentioned title-page in 1630 the complete original Baziliología series, and later the same series numbered, and, as numbered by Geele, they appeared in the 1638 edition of Martin’s “Historie,” down to and including Elizabeth, No. 23, but without the publisher’s address. Anne Boleyn, James I, and Anne of Denmark were probably included in the Geele series, but were not used in Martin’s “Historie,” as even the last edition only includes the reigns of Elizabeth and her predecessors.

It will be noted that I mention Types A, B, and C of certain of the portraits; these have been arbitrarily named for the purpose of the catalogue hereinafter contained.

In the following copies of the Baziliología, William I, Type A, is found.

- British Museum.
- British Museum Library.
- Bodleian, No. 1.
- Brooke.
- Chew.

These and other copies are fully described later on, but the location of the several types of certain of the portraits is given here to show how difficult it is to determine which types belonged to the original set. Type B is found in the following:

- Windsor.
- Bodleian, No. 2.
- Brooke (inserted).
- Jackson.
- Paris.

It is also to be observed that a state of Type A later than the Baziliología state is known; and that it is Type B which appears in the two Geele series, and in the 1628 and 1638 editions of Martyn's (Martin's) "Historie" and "Florus Britannicus," 1662.

Henry VIII, Type A, first state, with Sudbury and Humble's address, is found in the following copies:

- Windsor.
- British Museum.
- British Museum Library.
- Bodleian, No. 1.
- Chew.
- Jackson (inserted).
- Paris.

And in the second state, with William Peake’s address, in the following:

- Windsor.
- Brooke.
- Chew (inserted).

This state with Peake’s address may be ignored, as it must be too late to be considered, and is undoubtedly a recent addition to both the Windsor and Brooke copies, as well as the Chew.
Type B of Henry VIII is found in the following copies:
- Windsor.
- Bodleian, No. 2.
- Brooke.
- Jackson.

Also in both editions of Martyn, No. 20 in the Geele series, and in "Florus Britannicus."

Elizabeth appears in three types.
Type A is in the following copies:
- Windsor.
- British Museum Library.
- Bodleian, No. 1.
- And a late state in the Brooke copy.

Type B in:
- Windsor.
- Brooke (inserted).
- Paris.

Type C in:
- Windsor.
- Bodleian, No. 2.
- Brooke.
- Chew.
- Jackson.
- Paris.

Also, with Geele’s address, No. 23, and also without address, in the 1638 edition of Martin and in “Florus Britannicus.”

There is only one state of Type B, and of Type A only one state with the plate in good condition.

It is also to be noted that the second state of William I, Type A, shows the plate badly worn.

Probably Types A of William I and Henry VIII, and Type B of Elizabeth, were the first to appear in the Baziliwlogia; the plates became worn or, in the case of Elizabeth, destroyed, to be followed by Types B of William and Henry, and A of Elizabeth—still in the original series issued by Henry Holland; and in the case of Elizabeth the plate had to be again replaced, this time by Type C.
HISTORICAL SKETCH

The following note relative to Geele will be of interest: Vertue, in his "Catalogue of Engravers who have been born or resided in England; digested by Mr. Horace Walpole" (and which contains many inaccuracies), gives a list of Elstrack's portraits. That of Edward IV he mentions as "are to be sold by Thomas Geele at the dagger in Lombard-street."

Walpole then gives the following account of certain of the old London printsellers:

Vertue in one of his MSS. says, that Thomas Hinde, in 1537, was the first printseller in London; in another place he assigns that rank to George Humble; he no where mentions Geele. It is certain that the name of George Humble is frequently found on prints of the time of Elizabeth, in conjunction with John Sudbury; they lived in Pope's-head-alley; but Hinde and Geele were most probably their predecessors. . . . Henry Holland . . . was eldest son of Philemon Holland, and I suppose brother of . . . Compton Holland.

Vertue must be mistaken about Geele being the predecessor of Humble and Sudbury, as his name appears—as shown herein—on the later states of portraits originally published by them.

There is a most interesting letter from John Evelyn to Samuel Pepys bearing on this subject, which is worth quoting in full:

Deptford 7th 26, 1690, Morning.

Sir—Si vales, bene est, &c. Without more ceremony, then, and that my small excursion be no impediment to the perfecting your collection,—to the Queries. In the days of Queen Eliz., for before her time I hardly hear of any, came over one Crispin van de Pas; and in King James's, his brother Symon, who calleth himself Passeus, and afterwards there came in Charles 1st's time, one Elstrack, Stock, De la Rem, and Miriam; and of our own countrymen, Cecil, Martin, Vaughan, and especially Jo. Paine, for I forbear to mention Marshal, Crosse, and some other lamentable fellows, who engaged the effigies of the noblemen, &c., then flourishing. These prints were sold by George Humble and Sudbury, at the Pope's Head in Cornhill; by Jenner, at the Exchange; one Seager, I know not where, and Roger Daniel; but who had the most choice was Mr. Peake, near Holborn Conduit; and if there be any who can direct you where you may most likely hear what became of their plates and works of this kind, I believe nobody may so well inform you as Mr. Faithorne, father to the bookseller, who, if I am not mistaken, was apprentice to Sir Wm. Peake, for both he and Humble were made Knights, and therefore it may be worth your while to enquire of him. There came afterwards, you know, Lucas Vosterman, Hollar, Lombart, and other excellent artists; but these were of later times, which you do not enquire of. They wrought after Van-dyke, the Arundelian Collection, and best painters. And now of late the skilful in mezzo-tinto masters, who, for imitation of life, sometimes excel the burin itself ever so accurately handled. But of this enough:—I send you Sir, my face, such as it was of yore, but it is now so no more, tanto mutata; and with it, what you may find harder to procure, the Earl of Nottingham, Lord High Admiral; which, though it make a gap in my poor Collection, to which it was glad, I most cheerfully bestow it upon you, and would accompany it with the other two, were I master of them. I have Sir George Villiers, when a youth and newly dignified, in a small trifling print, not at all fit for you, who ought to have him when he was a Duke and Admiral; and of such there are many, easily to be had. I am sure his picture is below several flattering dedications, though at present I do not well remember where. But this I do, that there is a Taille-douce of that mighty favourite, almost as big as the life, and nothing inferior to any of the famous Nanteuil’s, graved by one Jacob, of Delft, in Holland, from a painting of Miereveld, that were well worth the sending even into Holland for, and for whatever else is of this kind, of that incomparable workman’s hand: I have once seen it, and took this notice of it to mention it in a new edition of my Calcographie, when I have leisure to revise that trifle. Lastly, as to my Lord Chancellor Hide, though I have not his effigies among the rest that I have huddled together, always presuming to get it of my Lord Clarendon, but perpetually forgetting to ask it, yet I can direct you where to come by it, and perhaps you have it already in your library: 'tis but enquiring where Sir W. Dugdale’s History of the Lord Chancellors was printed, and there you will find him, and the rest of the Long Robe, if you have a mind to them. Have you been at Mr Baker’s shop, near the old Exchange? Cannot Mr White furnish you? I am deceived if he has not graved most of the Chancellors since his Majesty’s restoration.

Yr most humble, faithful Servant,

J. Evelyn.

In Henry Bromley’s “Catalogue of Engraved British Portraits” (1793) is the following:

28 (Prints). From William to Elizabeth . . R. Elstrack. The first impressions were printed also with the name of Compton Holland, the publisher. They were reprinted in “Martin’s Chronicle,” 1631 fºl, and in other Histories continued to the reign of Charles II.

The date 1631 is an error: the last reference is to “Florus Britannicus.”

In the catalogue of the sale of the collection of the Rev. J. Burleigh James, M.A., held in March, April, and May 1877, at the rooms of Messrs. Sotheby, Wilkinson, and Hodge, are the two following items:
HISTORICAL SKETCH

By Reginald Elstracke

The items in Lot 1534 may be late states of the plates, but if such were the case, they should not be described as “fine.” As the lot only realized eight shillings we may assume they were late states with the addresses erased. The description of Elizabeth is probably incorrect, and should be “orb and sceptre.” Lot 1539 is probably the second state of this plate.

In “Fine Books,” by Mr. A. W. Pollard (the Connoisseur’s Library), 1912, it is stated that:

The full set of plates numbers thirty-two, including eight additions to the scheme of the book, representing the Black Prince, John of Gaunt, Anne Boleyn, a second version of Elizabeth, Mary Queen of Scots, Anne of Denmark, Prince Henry and Prince Charles. . . . It need hardly be said that they are of very varying degrees of authenticity as well as merit.

In “A Dictionary of the Printers and Booksellers at Work in England, Scotland, and Ireland, 1557-1640,” edited by Mr. R. B. McKerrow (The Bibliographical Society) 1910, the number of the plates is given as thirty-one, besides the title-page, but they are not described. This is taken from the “Dictionary of National Biography.”

The most important early reference to the Baziliâlogia which I have found is in the list of prints, etc., for sale by “John Garrett at his Shop as you go up the Stairs of the Royal Exchange in Cornhill,” which list is at the end of the 1718 edition of “Albert Durer Revived.” It is not in any other edition of this book which I have seen, and the Baziliâlogia is not mentioned by name, but it is undoubtedly the volume referred to. The item is as follows:

A Booke containing 27 leaves, printed in Folio, of the Kings of England, from William the Conqueror.
It may refer to "Florus Britannicus," which (excluding the printed title-page, blank verso, and two pages of dedication) has fifty-four pages, or twenty-seven leaves, but such can hardly be the case, as, even if we exclude the printed title sheet, the two pages of dedication cannot very well be ignored, and with them we have twenty-eight leaves. I cannot but think that it refers to the Baziliología title-page and twenty-six portraits—and, as will hereinafter appear, this seems to be the most reasonable number to include in the original series. It is to be observed, however, that the Fenn copy of "Florus Britannicus," hereafter described, is said to have fifty-four pages, but this I think must be incorrect. It is true that exactly one hundred years had elapsed since the Baziliología was published, but it is probable that many unbroken copies were in the hands of collectors and dealers; and it must be remembered that this list was issued nearly two hundred years ago, and is the earliest reference I have found which can be considered as applying to the Baziliología.

The most complete lists of the engravings by Elstrack and Delaram, and the most complete in English of portraits by members of the de Passe family, are those compiled by Mr. Hind, in Sir Sidney Colvin's book on Old Engravers in England, hereinbefore mentioned.

The standard work on the de Passe family, however, is:

It describes 1,403 items, some of which include several prints.

The best work on the portraits of Queen Elizabeth is the following:

Frontispiece and seven plates.

It describes (inter alia) 297 engraved portraits of the Queen.

The index is excellent.

A number of other books are mentioned in the Bibliography (pages xi to xiv hereof), but these three are the most important.

It is appropriate to mention the following relative to the portraits of Edward III, Henry II, Henry III, Edward IV, and Mary Queen of Scots.

The portrait of Edward III appears in “The Victorious Reigne of King Edvvard the Third written in Seven Books” [in verse]. London. By Thomas May. Printed for T. Walkley and B. Fisher, and are to bee sold at the signe of the Talbot without Aldersgate. 1635. It is copied from that in the Baziliwlogia, almost exactly, but with a different inscription.

The portrait by Vaughan of Henry II in the following seems to be inspired by the one in the Baziliwlogia, but is different in many details:

In 1817 there was reprinted at Newcastle-upon-Tyne (my copy is on pink paper), “A Short View of the Long Life and Raigne of Henry the Third, King of England. Presented to King James. 1627.” The Editor (B.C.I.) at the end of the preface says that “the portrait which accompanies the publication, is a faithful facsimile copy, by Lambert, of the very scarce original.” [Mark Lambert, one of Bewick’s assistants?]

This facsimile is an excellent copy of the Baziliwlogia portrait, but the names of engraver and publisher of the original are not reproduced, and it does not bear a number. These two facts indicate (if it is a facsimile) that it came before the Geele issues but after the 1628 edition of Martyn’s “Historie,” and therefore could not properly belong to a book printed in 1627.

Although first published anonymously, this “Short View” was written by Sir Robert Cotton, whose name appears in the titles of later editions.

Lowndes does not mention a portrait, while Hazlitt in his “Collections and Notes,” says that the book is sometimes accompanied by a portrait.

In the sale catalogue of the first portion of the Hoe collection, New York, April 1911, a copy of the second edition dated 1641 is described, in item No. 879, as containing a portrait. A note by the compiler states, however, that no copy is known of either the first or second editions containing a portrait, though the third has one, which is attributed to Faithorne. It is to be assumed therefore, that the portrait in the Hoe copy did not belong there.

I have a copy of the first edition, with the portrait, but it does not show the name of engraver or publisher, and has a figure 8 in the lower left hand corner. There is no text on the back. This impression, therefore, must be later than the last Geele issue, and earlier than the 1638 edition of Martin's "Historie," or the same date as the latter, but printed for some purpose other than to illustrate Martin. In any event it is too late a state properly to belong to a book published in 1627, and must have been inserted at a later date.

The editor of the Newcastle reprint undoubtedly had access to a copy of the 1627 edition with an early impression of the portrait, but whether or not it belonged to the volume, it is now impossible to state.

The British Museum copy does not contain a portrait, and there is no indication that it has been removed.

It is probable that the portrait has been inserted after publication in those copies which contain one, and that it does not belong in the book.

This is said to have been published at the request of King Charles I.

The portrait is in the same state as in Martin's "Historie," 1638.

Mary Queen of Scots, in the first state, appears in "The Historie of the life and death of Mary Stuart Queene of Scotland. London, Printed by John Haviland for Richard Whitaker, and are to be sold at the signe of the Kings Head in Paul's Churchyard, 1624."

In 1615 William Martyn published the first edition of "The Historie and Lives of the Kings of England. This edition contains no portraits. In 1628 the second edition appeared. This contains twenty portraits from William I, Type B, to Henry VIII, Type B, inclusive—all in the Baziliology state, as described hereinafter in the catalogue. They have no text on the back and are unnumbered. All the impressions are excellent, though they show some signs of wear.

The title-pages of both the 1628 and 1638 editions are reproduced later on. In 1638 the third edition appeared; the author’s name is now spelt Martin. This contains the twenty plates in the 1628 edition, but they are numbered from 1 to 20 inclusive, the publisher’s name is erased, and there is text covering all or a portion of the back. In addition are the following:

No number (should be 21). Edward VI.

22. Mary.

23. Elizabeth. Type C.

In 1641 an English edition of Sir Francis Biondi’s “An History of the Ciuill Warres of England” was published, the title-page of which is herein-after reproduced. The Baziliwlogia title-page was used, but with important changes, as will appear in the reproduction.

My copy contains four of the Baziliwlogia portraits, all without text on the back, and without names of publishers. They are numbered as follows:

No. 12. Richard II. No engraver’s name.

13. Henry IV. No engraver’s name.

14. Henry V. R.E.

15. Henry VI. R.E.

The next book containing the Baziliwlogia portraits was published in 1662 with the following printed title-page:

Florus Britannicus | Or, an Exact | Epitome | of the | History | of| England | From William the Conquerour to the | Twelfth Year of the Reign of his Sacred | Majesty Charles the Second, | now flourishing. | Illustrated with their perfect Portraitures | in exact Copper Plates, very delightful to the Reader: | As also, every King and Queens Elegie, with a Pa- | negryck under the last Plate, upon his | Majesties happy Returne. | By Mathew Stevenson, Gent. | Regis ad exemplum totus componitur Orbis. | London | Printed by M. T. and are to be sold by Thomas Jenner at the South | Entrance of the Royall Exchange. 1662.

Pp. 1 of title (and 1 verso) + 2 of dedication + 54.

On page one is the following, on the Baziliwlogia engraved title-page. It will be observed how little it differs from the same plate when used for Biondi’s “Ciuill Warres.”

" Charles I. A badly worn, and altogether wretched, plate. Published by Thomas Jenner.

" Charles II. Very poor plate. No engraver's or publisher's name.

A foot-note, under "King William the Conqueror," in Granger's "Biographical History of England," reads as follows:

Holland, who published the "Heroologia Anglica," has also published a volume of heads of the kings, from the Conquest to the year 1618. These prints are the same with [sic] those in Martin's "Chronicle," except the title and the head of William I . . . There is also a set [Heads of Kings and Queens] in wood published by T. T. (Thomas Timmes), 1597, see Ames's "Hist. of Printing," p. 432. The set of etchings, in 8vo. whole lengths, from William I to Elizabeth, are for the most part ideal; their arms are upon their shields. Another set, from the Conqueror to Charles II, is in Matthew Stevenson's "Florus Britannicus," 1662, fol. A considerable number of these are done by Elstracke, and some by Delaram: the plates are nearly of a quarto size. The best impressions were published by Compton Holland, in a set entitled "Baziologia" [sic] 1618.

The full reference in Ames relative to the woodcuts above mentioned is as follows:

John de Beauchesne

1597. I have only had information of the following book: A book, containing the true portraiture of the countenances and attires of the Kings of England, from William the Conqueror unto our soveraigne lady queene Elizabeth, now reigning: Together with a brief reporte of some of the principall acts of the same kings, especially such as have beene least mentioned in our late writers. Diligently collected by T. T. (Thomas Timmes). London: Printed by John de Beauchasne [sic], dwelling in Black Fryers. In Roman letter.

Quarto.

A fine copy of this interesting and excessively rare book is in the British Museum Library.

In Granger's letters, published in 1805, "Letters | between the | Rev. James Granger, M.A. | . . . | and | many of the most eminent | Literary Men of his time | composing | a copious history and illustration | of his"
Dear Sir,

I am almost ashamed to look at the date of your last kind and obliging letter. My best apology is, my not having since met with any prints or anecdotes worthy your notice. . . . You have, in your Biographical History, taken notice of two or three heads of the Kings of England, which belong to a complete sett, from William the Conqueror to Charles II. published in 1662.

As you confine your notices to so few, I rather suppose you never saw the sett, which are most of them done by Elstrache [sic]. If you never saw the sett, you will not be displeased at my giving you some little account of them; if they are known to you, I beg your pardon. The book which contains them is entitled, “Florus Britannicus,” or an exact epitome of the History of England, from William the Conqueror to the 12th Charles II, illustrated with their perfect Portraits, in exact copper-plates, very delightful to the Reader. By Matthew Stephenson, gent. London; printed by M. S. and sold by Thomas Jenner, 1662. A thin folio of 54 pages.

   Charles II.

I look upon all the numbered ones to be done by Elstrache. Numbers 6 and 21 are omitted in the prints, I suppose by mistake, as they seem to be done by the same hand as the others. The three last are not numbered, and are done, I believe, by T. [sic] Delaram; his mark is on the first of them.

Those with a star are those which you have mentioned; the plates are all nearly of a quarto size . . .

from, Sir, your obliged, &c.

JOHN FENN.

If the foregoing list is accurate, then it is clear that "Florus Britannicus" appeared in two forms, the following showing the differences between the above and the copy in the British Museum Library.

It is necessary to assume that the Fenn list is correct, as it is given with so much detail, and I have noted the states of Richard I, John, and Mary therefrom, in the catalogue.

The following old catalogue of a printseller should be noted:

The following 23 prints in a set (the first 19 by Elstrack, and the last 4 by Delaram) are priced at £1 1s., viz.:

HISTORICAL SKETCH

Henry IV, Edward IV, Edward V, Richard III, Henry VII, Henry VIII, Edward VI (this is stated to be engraved by "Elstrake"), Mary, Elizabeth, James I, Charles I.

Edward VI, by "S. Pass," and Edward, surnamed the Black Prince, by "R. Elstrake," are listed separately at half a crown each.

It is obvious that the set is not complete, and as the publishers' names are not mentioned the states of the plates cannot be determined; nevertheless the prices are interesting.

It should also be noticed that the Durrant (see Appendix A), Delabere (see Appendix B), Fife (see Appendix C), and other copies of the Bazilioslogia which have been dispersed at sales, were none of them in their original condition; but, having been made up according to the fancy or taste of their respective owners, they furnish no clue to help us determine which prints belong to the Bazilioslogia as issued by Henry Holland.

WATER MARKS

An examination of the water- or paper-marks on the various impressions throws little light on the question as to which portraits belong to the original series. For instance, in the British Museum Library copy, the portraits of William I, Edward I, Richard III, and Mary, all show the gateway mark which is here reproduced. My specimen of Henry V with Geele's address has the same mark, and it also appears in "The Historie of Edward the Fourth, King of England," by Wm. Habington, London, 1640, which contains a very late state of the portrait of Henry V.

In the same museum copy, Elizabeth and Prince Henry have the mark of a ewer which is shown on page 25. This same mark appears in "The Historie of The Life and Death of Mary Stuart Queene of Scotland," by Wil.
Strangvage, London, 1624, which contains the portrait of Mary Queen of Scots in its first state. Later impressions of other of the portraits have the same mark.

Still different marks are on the portraits of Henry III, Edward III, Henry IV, Henry VIII, Anne of Denmark, and Prince Charles, in the Museum copy above mentioned, while the others show no mark at all; which can of course be accounted for by the way the paper was folded.

It can be seen therefore, that while the marks help us to identify early paper, they do not assist very much in deciding the order in which the portraits printed thereon were issued, or which ones belonged to a particular set. The principal evidence is found in the wording of the title-page, the important reference to the book with twenty-seven leaves, and in an examination of the prints themselves.
CHECK-LIST OR CATALOGUE, OF THE TITLE-PAGES TO BOOKS CONTAINING THE BAZILIΩLOGIA PORTRAITS AND OF THE PORTRAITS THEMSELVES

In the following check-list or catalogue I have included the Baziliωlogia title-page in its several states; the title-pages from other books in which the Baziliωlogia portraits appear, and the portraits themselves in the various states, some of which may not belong to the series.

Next after the catalogue will be found my conclusions relative to the number which should be included in the original series; then will be given the lists of the plates in the several known copies of the Baziliωlogia; then specimens of the various types of portraits which are found with, or bound up with, the series proper, in the Windsor, Bodleian No. 1, Brooke, Chew, Jackson, and Paris copies, together with brief descriptions of them, and finally lists from important sale catalogues, Mr. Hind's list, and the list from Lowndes. It is to be remembered that there is no text on the backs of the portraits as they appeared in the Baziliωlogia, in Martyn's "Historie" (1628), in either of the Geele series, or Biondi's "Ciull Warres"; but there is printing on the backs of those in Martin's "Historie" (1638), and "Florus Britannicus" (1662). I have described the text on the backs of the 1638 series so that they can be distinguished from the 1662 series. There are two types (each in several states) of portraits of William I and Henry VIII, and three of Elizabeth, found in the various copies; these I have arbitrarily designated A, B, and C in the case of Elizabeth, and A and B in the others, for the purpose of this catalogue, as hereinbefore stated.

The following short titles have been used in the lists:

Windsor = copy belonging to His Majesty the King, and preserved in the Royal Library, Windsor Castle.
British Museum = British Museum Print Room.
British Museum Library = copy in the Library as distinguished from above.
Bodleian No. 1 = the two copies in the Bodleian Library, Oxford.
Bodleian No. 2 = the two copies in the Bodleian Library, Oxford.
Brooke = copy belonging to the late Sir Thomas Brooke, F.S.A. (now belonging to Lady Brooke), and preserved in Armitage Bridge House, near Huddersfield.
Chew = copy belonging to Beverly Chew, Esq., New York.
Jackson = copy discovered by T. W. Jackson, M.A., and presented by him to the Hope Portrait collection, Oxford, where it is now preserved.
Fenn = "Florus Britannicus" as described in Mr. Fenn's letter hereinbefore mentioned.
Buccleuch = Duke of Buccleuch's collection.
Bute Granger = The Marquis of Bute's illustrated copy of Granger's "Biographical History of England."
Sutherland collection = collection formed by the late Alexander Hendras Sutherland, Esq., and now in the Bodleian Library.
Levis = the author's collection.

A question mark (?) after an item indicates that I have not seen or heard of it, but nevertheless that it probably exists.

The Bazililogia state of the portrait is designated by the letters "Baz" in the first column.

TITLE-PAGE No. I

First State. As used in the Baziliaslogia, 1618. See Plate II, opposite page i. This is a photogravure facsimile of the copy in the British Museum Library.

Second State. As used in the Baziliaslogia, 1630. Same as the first state, excepting the imprint, which is now changed so as to read as follows: "Are to be soould by Thomas | Geele at the dagger in | Lumbard street, | 1630."
Traces of the old imprint can be seen. See Plate I, the frontispiece hereto. This is a photogravure facsimile of the copy in the Royal Library, Windsor Castle.

Third State. As used in Biondi’s "Ciuil Warres," 1641. The portraits of James I and Anne of Denmark are replaced by those of Charles I and his consort. The words: "Rich: 2d" and "Hen: 7th" are inserted under the effigies of Richard and Henry respectively. The title is also changed. See reproduction on the opposite page, from my copy (Fig. V).

Fourth State. As used in Stevenson’s "Florus Britannicus," 1662. Exactly the same as the third state, excepting that the two bottom compartments are merged into one, which contains the following: "London Printed for | Thomas Jenner at the | Royall Exchange | 1662."
THE HISTORIE AND LIVES, OF THE KINGS OF ENGLAND:

From William the Conqueror, into the end of the Ruine of King Henry the Eighth.

With other several Observations.

By William Martyn Esquire,
Recorder of the Honourable Corte.

LONDON,
Printed for James Boler.

M.DC.XXVII.

See reproduction on the opposite page from the copy in the British Museum Library, Fig. VI. This is the first book in which the Baziliwlogia portraits appeared with text.

The first edition, 1615, contains no portraits, and was published three years earlier than the Baziliwlogia.

It will be observed that this and the Type B portrait of William I are very different. Granger in his "Biographical History of England" adds the following amusing note, after his list of the portraits of William I:

"These prints of William the Conqueror are very unlike each other. Accuracy of drawing is not to be expected in an age, in which the generality of artists had not arrived at sufficient precision to distinguish between a monkey and a man."

I have seen no other state.

A reproduction is shown on opposite page (Fig. 15).

There is an excellent copy of this portrait, the same size as the original, but with the background of the oval, the face, and parts of the costume engraved in stipple. The oval frame is blank, excepting the five little balls at the top, and only the arms appear in the lower panel, the garter surrounding the arms being also without text. I do not know who engraved or published it, as I have seen no other state.

In the Durrant sale there were two specimens; one, together with portrait of Richard III, comprised lot No. 79, while lot No. 80 was described as follows:

"Henry VII, by Elstracke, sold by C. Holland, first state, with the head in its original state, extremely scarce. It would appear that the head was altered by the hand of Delaram, as seen in the preceding lot."

I can find no other reference to this state, so have not noted it above.

I have not seen a numbered copy of Geele's issue, and have not therefore noted a possible third state. If a numbered state exists it is either No. 24 or 26, probably 26. (See James I and Anne of Denmark.)

Even if Geele issued the fourth state, as above mentioned, it is probable that the plate was unnumbered, as the two subsequent states show no evidence of numbers.

This plate does not appear in Florus Britannicus, but is replaced by a poor copy, in reverse.

A reproduction of the second state is shown on opposite page (Fig. 26).

This is No. 270 in O'Donoghue's catalogue. John Payne made a reversed copy. It forms the centre of an emblematic sheet—probably a title-page—published by Roger Daniell.

I have seen no other states. While it is found in three copies of the Baziliuslogia (in its first state) as above mentioned, I think the Type B portrait by Elstrack is the true Baziliuslogia type. This is also Mr. Hind's opinion.

Note A. There is a loose impression in the British Museum, on which is written "R. Elstracken Sc." with no traces of an engraver's name. The second state must have shown the engraver's name. The traces of the name appearing in the third state are clearly portions of "W. Kip Sculp," as can be seen in the Jackson and Windsor copies, and in the Bute Granger.

Note B. This plate is No. 81 in O'Donoghue's Catalogue, but he incorrectly states that it appears in the 1615 edition of Martyn's Historie: it does, however, appear in the 1638 edition as shown above.

Note C. It undoubtedly is inspired by the beautiful print by Crispin van de Passe, Sen. (O'Donoghue, No. 80) reproduced (Fig. 32) on opposite page.

Note D. A small copy, without the arch, with the name of "Compton Holland excudit" under four lines of description of the Queen (O'Donoghue, No. 85) appears in the 1618 edition of John Taylor's (the Water Poet) "A Briefe Remembrance of all the English Monarchs," and Ralph Gardiner's (1655) "England's Grievance Discovered."

RECAPITULATION AND CONCLUSIONS

HE following is a recapitulation of the principal facts hereinbefore shown.

First. Martyn's "Historie" (1628) contains only the portraits of kings, down to and including Henry VIII; and it must be remembered that both William I and Henry VIII are Type B.

Second. This was followed by two series with the address of Thomas Geele, one with and the other without numbers. The title-page is dated 1630. Number 1 is Type B of William I, number 20 is Type B of Henry VIII, and number 23 is Type C of Elizabeth. The impressions are excellent, though showing some signs of wear. The portrait of Anne Boleyn appeared in the Geele issues.

Third. Next comes Martin's "Historie" (1638) with the same numbered plates as in the numbered series of Geele, down to, and including Elizabeth only, but with no publisher's address. The plates show further signs of wear and retouching.

Fourth. John Garrett, in 1718 (only one hundred years after the Bazilialogia date) had for sale a book of the Kings of England from the Conqueror, printed on twenty-seven leaves; and at this time unbroken copies of the original Bazilialogia must have been fairly common.
RECAPITULATION AND CONCLUSIONS

Fifth. The number of portraits in the 1628 and 1638 editions of Martyn's "Historie" was fixed by the reigns described therein respectively, and do not necessarily contain the complete Baziliwlogia series.

Sixth. There is no such limitation in the case of the Geele issues, as there is no evidence that they were used as illustrations in a book with text. It is certain, however, that they were issued in a set, with a title-page dated 1630, and that the later issue bore numbers, the same as in the 1638 edition of Martin.

Seventh. It is probable that Geele adhered as closely as possible to the original series, and the reason he used the Type B plates of William I and Henry VIII was the same as caused their inclusion in Martyn's Historie (1628), which can be explained by the probability that Types A had been acquired by others. Undoubtedly Types A were still in use, as is indicated by their later states. The latter comment applies also to the Type A portrait of Elizabeth, but the Type B seems to have disappeared entirely. Geele was obliged to use the Type C, and was followed in this respect in the later issues.

Eighth. Not one of the known copies of the Baziliwlogia is in its original binding.

Ninth. On the title-page, the Baziliwlogia is called a "Booke of Kings," which seems to indicate that only royal portraits are included.

Tenth. Some of the plates were issued prior to 1618, the date of the Baziliwlogia; therefore some were not engraved for the series, although they were included in it.

The following are my conclusions:

I. The Baziliwlogia series proper consisted of a title-page and twenty-six portraits of kings and queens, from William I to James I, and including Anne Boleyn and Anne of Denmark, printed on one side of the sheet, making in all twenty-seven leaves.

II. The portraits of Edward the Black Prince, John of Gaunt, Mary Queen of Scots, Prince Henry and Prince Charles, do not belong to the series.
III. In the numbered Geele series Anne Boleyn must have come at the end, as all the others are numbered consecutively to Elizabeth, excepting Edward VI, which probably never bore a number.

IV. Type A of William I and Henry VIII and Type B of Elizabeth were first used, but Type B of William I and Henry VIII, and Types A and C of Elizabeth were also used in original later copies.

V. Both of the Geele series included only Type B of William I and Henry VIII, and Type C of Elizabeth.

VI. No other Baziliwlogia type of portraits or other portraits of the period should be included; they were engraved in these forms simply because they were the fashion of the day.

These conclusions are not of great importance. All of the engraved portraits of the period found in the several extended copies of the Baziliwlogia, and other portraits of similar types, are of the greatest interest, even when they do not belong to the Baziliwlogia, or if they have little artistic value, as they record the costumes of the period, and what were then thought to be the costumes of earlier times; they show us the effigies of many of the important people of the day, whose portraits would otherwise be lost; and they give us poetical and other records of the attributes and achievements of their originals. They are worthy of a high place in the estimation of the historian, the collector of portraits, and the student of early English engraving.
LISTS OF PORTRAITS IN EXISTING COPIES OF THE BAZILIΩLOGIA WHICH I HAVE BEEN ABLE TO LOCATE AND IN MY OWN COLLECTION

In the following lists of portraits in the nine copies of the Baziliωlogia I know of, and in my own collection, all are in the Baziliωlogia states as described in the catalogue, unless otherwise noted. I have numbered them consecutively in the order in which they appear in the respective volumes, exclusive of the title-page.

Those enclosed in brackets I do not think belong to the series.

The Windsor copy has been broken up, each print being mounted on a white card, the whole being preserved in three solanders.

Other interesting lists will be found in the appendixes, but all the sets described therein have been broken up and dispersed.

LISTS OF PORTRAITS

In addition to those noted, the collection comprises one hundred and sixty portraits, including four duplicates, or one hundred and ninety-seven in all, and two title-pages.

The most interesting items are the title-page with Geele's address, and Anne Boleyn (25) with the same address.

LIST OF PORTRAITS IN COPY No. 1, PRESERVED IN THE BODLEIAN LIBRARY, OXFORD

In the Bodleian Catalogue this copy is described as follows:

Out of the 32 portraits usually comprising the book, this copy wants those of Edward the Black Prince, John of Gaunt, Anne Boleyn, & Q. Mary of Scotland. It contains two of Henry, Prince of Wales, and two of Prince Charles; and comprises besides 108 miscellaneous portraits, among which are two of the Countess of Somerset, one of Matoaka, daughter of the Indian Chief Powhatan, and Will Sommers King Henry VIII\textsuperscript{th} jester, ending with "Mulld Sake."

It belonged to Richard Rawlinson, who died 6th April 1755, and came to the Library the next year.

LIST OF PORTRAITS IN COPY No. 2, PRESERVED IN THE BODLEIAN LIBRARY, OXFORD

This is described in the Bodleian Catalogue as follows:

Another copy with numerous historical MS. notes, wanting John of Gaunt & Q. Mary of Scotland, and Prince Henry and Charles, and with different engravings of Q. Eliz. & James I. Added at the end are Charles I when King, & the King and Queen of Bohemia with their children.

On the title-page is the name of a former owner who purchased it in Oxford in 1626, and it is interleaved with old paper on which, in seventeenth-century writing, are historical notes on the kings—not, unfortunately, relating to the book itself or the portraits. The binding is old, but the book is not in its original condition. In many ways, however, it is the most interesting copy I have seen.

It contains no portraits other than those in the following list.

LIST OF PORTRAITS IN COPY BELONGING TO THE LATE SIR THOMAS BROOKE, F.S.A.

LISTS OF PORTRAITS

Thomas for private circulation, is a detailed description of what is probably the finest known copy of the Baziliologia. According to the description:

This copy . . . contains all the 32 engraved portraits, with the exception of No. 24, Anne Boleyn, that are described by Lowndes as belonging to this important and most rare series. There are besides these Royal portraits, 154 additional portraits, which may be thus classified: 15 members of the Royal Family, 37 Nobility, 22 Bishops and Clergy, 9 Chancellors and Lawyers, 12 Warriors and Admirals, 9 Poets, &c., 7 Remarkable characters, 23 Popes and Foreign Sovereigns, 20 Foreign Nobility, &c.

Since the catalogue was printed, a number of portraits have been added to the collection, bringing the total up to 217.

Among those added are:

William I (Type B).
Anne Boleyn.
The only portraits I mention in the following list are those I have thereinbefore catalogued.

After the list, the catalogue contains the article from the Durrant Sale Catalogue, which I have hereinbefore quoted.

Accompanying the volume is a copy of the Sale Catalogue of the celebrated Delabere collection, with names of purchasers and prices. There is also bound up with this catalogue a manuscript list of the portraits contained in the present collection and other memoranda.

29. [Charles, Prince, etc.]
30. [Charles, Prince, etc.] (From Rathborne’s “Surveyor”).

If this copy contained Edward III it would comprise a complete series, though not all the types; John of Gaunt is also missing, but I do not consider it one of the series.
LISTS OF PORTRAITS

LIST OF PORTRAITS IN THE COPY BELONGING TO THE HOPE PORTRAIT COLLECTION, AT OXFORD.

The following inscription is on the cover:

"The Hope Portrait Collection
Oxford
Given by T. W. Jackson, M.A.
(Keeper)
1911."

This volume contains 149 portraits, most of them in excellent state and condition. At one time it contained a few more, as appears from breaks in the consecutive numbering; these missing numbers are noted on the back cover, leaving the net number 149. In the following list the numbers in brackets are those written on the prints:

8. [8] Henry III.
10. [10] Edward II.
12. [29] [Edward the Black Prince.]
13. [12] Richard II.
15. [14] Henry V.
17. [16] Edward III.
18. [17] Edward V.
19. [18] Richard III.
20. [19] Henry VII.
LISTS OF PORTRAITS

22. [21] Henry VIII (Type B).
23. [22] Edward VI (inserted).
27. [34] [Mary Queen of Scots.]
29. [33] Anne of Denmark (inserted).
30. [39] Charles, Prince, etc. (Third State, inserted).

Number [26] is the tomb of Queen Elizabeth, numbers [27] and [28] are modern prints (not of the Baziliueslogia type) of Lord Darnley and Mary Queen of Scots, and number [31] is James I—the same plate as subsequently used in “Florus Britannicus.” Among the remaining portraits is a fine impression of “Mulld Sake.”

LIST OF PORTRAITS IN THE COPY PRESERVED IN THE CABINET D’ESTAMPES, BIBLIOTHEQUE NATIONALE, PARIS.

The title-page is missing, and a written one substituted in its place. It contains 113 portraits. Each portrait bears a written number, and there is a written index. The title-page, index, and binding are early nineteenth century.

The numbers in the following list are the numbers written on the prints:

1. William I (Type B).
2. William II.
3. Henry I.
5. Henry II.
6. Richard I.
8. Henry III.

Set of twenty-one of the Geele numbered series, from William I, Type B, to Elizabeth, Type C, inclusive, excepting John and Edward VI. Henry VIII is Type B. This set was found inserted in the third volume of a copy of Holinshed's Chronicles of England (1586-7 edition), as described on page 10 hereof.

Martyn's "Historie," 1628. Title-page but no portraits.
Martin's "Historie," 1638, and a number of loose impressions in this state.
Biondi's "Ciull Warres," 1641. Large paper, with title-page and portraits as noted in the catalogue.
Another copy. 1641-6. No portraits.
SPECIMENS OF OTHER TYPES OF PORTRAITS FOUND IN SOME COPIES OF THE BAZILΙΩ-LOGIA.

As has been hereinbefore noted, the Windsor, Bodleian No. 1, Brooke, Jackson, and Paris copies of the Baziliω-logia each contain a large number of portraits other than those belonging to the original series. The following illustrations (Figures 39 to 59 inclusive) show some of the types of those so included. Figure 60 is from a set of Kings, published in the 1621 (?) edition of “A Briefe Remembrance of all the English Monarchs,” by John Taylor, the Water Poet. It is similar to the Baziliωlogia portrait of King James.
Fig. 39. Size of original, $4\frac{3}{4}$ in. by $7\frac{1}{4}$ in.

Frederick V of Bohemia, Elizabeth, and their eight children.
Engraved by Robert Vaughan, an English engraver who worked about 1622-78.

This and Figures 40 to 45 inclusive are from photographs of portraits in the bound portion of the Baziliologia belonging to the late Sir Thomas Brooke, hereinbefore specifically described.
Fig. 40. Size of original, 4 1\(\frac{1}{2}\) in. by 7 1\(\frac{1}{2}\) in.

Elizabeth of Bohemia.

From a brilliant impression of the first state in the Brooke Collection.

Engraved by Francis Delaram.

In the second state a curtain is added in the background. In the third the face is re-worked.
Fig. 41. Size of original, $4 \frac{1}{2}$ in. by $7 \frac{1}{2}$ in.

Sir Richard Whittington [Richard Whittington].
Engraved by Elstrack.
From the Brooke Collection.

First state, with the skull and the address of Compton Holland. In the second state a cat replaces the skull but the publisher is still Compton Holland. In the third the plate is re-worked and the address is that of Peter Stent. In the fourth state the address is erased.
Fig. 42. Size of original, $5\frac{1}{2}$ in. by $7\frac{1}{2}$ in.

"Robert Car, Earle of Somerset . . . and . . . Ladie Francis his wife."
Brooke Collection.
Engraved by Elstrack.

Engraver's name is not shown. Second state with publisher's name erased.
Fig. 43. Size of original, $4\frac{1}{4}$ in. by $7\frac{1}{8}$ in.

"Mahomet the Great."

Engraver's name is absent.

Brooke Collection.

There are several portraits of this type.
Fig. 44. Size of original. 5½ in. by 8½ in.

The passe-partout is by Willem van de Passe. The portrait is that of Sir James Ley, Knight and Baronet, Lord Chief Justice of the King's Bench, etc.

Engraved by John Payne.

The same passe-partout was used for other portraits. There is a similar passe-partout with figures representing military exercises, likewise engraved by Willem van de Passe. Payne was one of the greatest of the early English engravers. Born about 1598; worked 1621–37; died 1637. From the Brooke Collection.
Fig. 45. Size of original, 4$\frac{3}{4}$ in. by 4$\frac{3}{4}$ in.
William de Falde Burton,
Brooke Collection.
Engraved by Delaram.

Prefixed to his "Leicestershire" (1622). This is a beautiful little portrait.
Fig. 46. Size of original, 4 3/8 in. by 6 3/4 in.

Nicolas Leate, Alderman.
Engraved by John Payne.

This is one of the best of Payne's portraits.
Fig. 47. Size of original, 4 7/8 in. by 7 in.
(Exclusive of publisher's address.)
Jan van Olden-Barnavelt.
Engraved by Elstrack.
Fig. 48. Size of original, $4\frac{3}{4}$ in. by $6\frac{3}{4}$ in.

Charles I, as Prince of Wales.

Engraved by Crispin van de Passe the younger.

A splendid print. (Franken, No. 521.) First state.
Fig. 49. Size of original, $4\frac{1}{4}$ in. by 7 in.

Gervase Babington.
Engraved by Elstrack.

Second state, after the words "Impensis Thomae Chardi" in the lower right-hand compartment were erased.
Fig. 50. Size of original, 5½ in. by 7 7/8 in.

"Captaine Christopher Carleill Esquire."

Engraved by Robert Boissard, a French engraver who lived in England. Born in Valence in 1590. Ch. Le Blanc, "Manuel de l’Amateur d’Estampes," credits him with 38 prints of which this is No. 36, but there are others not mentioned by Le Blanc.

This is one of a set of six admirals, the others being Sir Francis Drake, Sir John Hawkins, Sir Martin Frobisher, Sir Humphrey Gilbert, and Captain Thomas Cavendish. All are very scarce.
Fig. 51. Size of original, $3\frac{1}{4}$ in. in diameter, including surrounding inscription.

Prince John, Count Palatine of Rhyne.
Engraver's name not given.

"Henr. Holland excudit Lond."
Fig. 52. Size of original, 3\(\frac{1}{2}\) in. by 5\(\frac{9}{16}\) in.

Henry, Prince of Wales.
Engraved by Crispin van de Passe, Senr.
(Franken, No. 617.)
From "Regiae Anglicaæ Majestatis Pictura"; 1613 edition.

A beautiful portrait. It also appeared in the first, or 1604 edition, but in a slightly different state. The above is from the copy formerly in the Huth Collection.
Fig. 53. Size or original, 4¾ in. by 6¼ in. (including the words “María. Reg: Scotorvm”).

Mary Queen of Scots.
Engraver's name not given. A rare series.

Fig. 54. Size of original, $4\frac{7}{8}$ in. by $6\frac{1}{4}$ in.

Robert Dudley, Earl of Leicester.

Engraved by Willem van de Passe. (P e)

From Holland's "Herwologia Anglica," 1620.

Willem and his sister Magdalena engraved the portraits in this series, and their father, Crispin van de Passe, published them. The above is the only one bearing signature of engraver.
Fig. 55. Size of original, $4\frac{1}{8}$ in. by $7\frac{1}{8}$ in.

Henry, Prince of Wales, at lance exercise.
Engraved by William Hole.

Fig. 56. Size of original, $4\frac{1}{4}$ in., by $6\frac{7}{8}$ in.

James VI of Scotland.
Engraved by Elstrack.

A copy, without border lines, appears in "Woodburn’s Gallery of Rare Portraits," London, 1816.
Fig. 57. Size of original, $4\frac{3}{8}$ in. by $6\frac{3}{4}$ in.

James IV of Scotland.
Engraver’s name not given.

The figure is similar to that in "Inscriptiones Historicae Regvm Scotorvm," but reversed, and in the latter the arm rests on a cushion, the whole surrounded by an oval, as in Fig. 53.
Fig. 58. Size of original, 5\(\frac{1}{4}\) in. by 8\(\frac{3}{4}\) in.

From an impression in the British Museum, which is somewhat cut at the top.

Portrait of John Cottington, called "Mulld: Sake": chimney sweep and thief. Engraved by Elstrack.

An excessively rare print. Impressions are in the Bodleian No. 1, Jackson and Brooke Collections, a loose impression is in the British Museum, and one (formerly in the Delabere and Daniel Collections) was in the Huth Sale in 1911, where it sold for £11. In the Delabere Sale catalogue it was stated to be unique. A footnote beginning on page 117 of Caulfield's "Calcographiana" (1814) refers to this last-mentioned impression as follows:

The only impression of this print hitherto known, was in the collection of John Delabere, Esq., of Cheltenham, in Gloucestershire. The late Mr. Brand was so anxious to obtain a drawing from the original, that he commissioned Mr. Silvester Harding to undertake a journey to Cheltenham for the express purpose, and by whose permission I obtained another for insertion in the Memoirs of Remarkable Persons: after the decease of Mr. Dela-here, the volume was sold by auction at Christie's Rooms in Pall-Mall, March 29, 1811, each portrait separate, and produced upwards of six hundred pounds, though consisting of only 152 prints; that of Mull'd Sack [sic] selling for forty guineas, nearly twice as much as any other two in the collection.

There is a portrait of a character in every instance similar to this, "one Gamaliel Ratsey," a notorious Highwayman, noticed by Ben Johnson [sic]. The late George Steevens, Esq., informed me he had seen it in the possession of Mr. Warner, who left his books to Wadham College, Oxford; and that it was a frontispiece to an account of the life and exploits of Ratsey.—I looked carefully over the catalogue of the library but without success in finding the book or print noticed.

In a very rare poetical tract of sixteen pages, printed in 1662, entitled "The Chimney's Scuffle," reference is made to "Mull'd Sack" [sic], the first six lines being devoted to him; and there is a marginal note as follows: "who chang'd his name for a sum of money conditionally paid him by his fellow chimney sweepers."
Fig. 59. Size of original, $4\frac{1}{2}$ in. by $7\frac{1}{2}$ in. (exclusive of inscription).

"Will Sommers, King Heneryes Jester."
Engraved by Delaram.

It will be noted that this is similar to, but smaller than, "Mulld Sake." Very scarce. A copy was published by William Richardson, 2nd April 1798, and appears in his edition of Granger, and also in Caulfield's "Calco-graphiana."
IAMES, Of that name The First, And First Monarch of the whole Land of GREAT BRITANIE: Uniting under one, and the same his most Glorious Crowne, the King James of England, SCOTLAND, FRANCE and IRELAND. Gods immediate VICEGERENT, Supreme Head of all Persons: And Defender of the true, ancient Christian Faith, in these his Empire and Dominions.

VT hon. God long preserve.

Fig. 60. Size of portrait plate, 3\(\frac{1}{2}\) in. by 4\(\frac{1}{4}\) in.

Second State.

From a scarce series of portraits of kings from William I to James I inclusive, also including Queens Mary and Elizabeth, and Charles I as Prince. The reproduction is from the second edition of a book entitled "A Briefe Remembrance of all the English Monarchs from the Norman Conquest." London, 1621 (?). 25 plates. The first edition is dated 1618. Opposite each portrait is a descriptive title (as shown above) and on the back of each title is a verse by John Taylor, the Water Poet, relative to the person represented in the next preceding portrait. The engraver is not known. Some of the plates have a number in the upper left-hand corner, the last with a number being Queen Mary, No. 22.

Edward II (No. 10) is also used as a frontispiece in "The Historie of Edward the Second, surnamed Carnarvan, one of our English Kings. . . . By F. H. Knight, London, Printed by B. A. and T. F. for L. Chapman, and are to be sold at his shop at the Vpper end of Chancery-Lane. 1629."

Edward VI (No. 21) is also on the verso of the wood-cut title-page to a book by Francis Godwin entitled "Annales of England. Edvard the Sixth. The Second Booke."
London. Printed by Adam Islip and William Stansby, 1630," but the inscription is changed.

Mary (No. 22) is also on the verso of a wood-cut title-page to the same volume (The Third Book), but the inscription is changed.

Lowndes also notes an edition of Gardiner dated 1796, and states that the plates are very inferior to those in the edition of 1655. These are, however, entirely different plates, engraved in stipple by W. Ridley.

It is interesting to note how closely the above portrait of James I follows that reproduced in Fig. 34. The head in the first state in the 1618 edition of Taylor’s book is very different from that in the second state here shown, and it was changed again for Gardiner’s book in 1655. It should also be noted that the portrait of Queen Elizabeth in Taylor’s book is similar to Type C of her Baziliaologia portrait, and bears the name of “Compton Holland excudit,” being the only one of the Taylor series with a name of engraver or publisher.

Other portraits in the Taylor series are undoubtedly based on the same originals as the Baziliaologia portraits, probably those in the book by T. T. (1597) noted on page 21 hereof.
THE Durrant Sale was held at the house of Messrs. S. Leigh Sotheby and Co., 3, Wellington Street, Strand, London, the 6th of May 1847, and six following days (Sunday excepted).

The Baziliωlogia portraits were sold separately. The Royal Portraits, a number of which do not belong to the series, were first sold, the following being the descriptions from the catalogue, together with the prices realized and names of purchasers. The left-hand numbers are those in the catalogue.

Colnaghi. 99. | Charles I, when Prince of Wales, full face, four Latin lines beneath, by Crispin de Pass, brilliant | £ 1 7 0 0
Dodd. 100. | Charles I, when a boy, inscribed "Duke of York and Albany," four Latin lines beneath, proof, before the name of the engraver; and old copy of the same. | 2 18 0

In addition to the foregoing thirty-four lots, comprising forty-eight royal portraits, there were on the same day sold twenty-one portraits of nobility, which as a rule sold for higher prices than those of royalty, the following being the two highest:

George Duke of Buckingham when Earl of Buckingham. Nearly full face, with broad frill, the George pendent from a riband, by Simon Pass, 1617, L. Lisle, exaud., of extreme rarity, only three impressions being known,—from the Strawberry Hill Collection.
Henry Rich, Earl of Holland, in armour, trophies of arms in the corner, inscribed "Henry Rich, Knight, Captaine of the Guard to his Royale Majestie," by Will. Pass, sold by Thomas Jenner, a beautiful impression with large margin

In addition to the above mentioned royal portraits and of nobility, there were sold subsequently the following:

Nobility: 8
Gentry: 4
Clergy: 12
Lawyers: 10

[The portrait of Sir Julius Caesar sold for £5.]
Military Commanders: 4
Literary, etc.: 3

[The portrait of George Withers, the poet, sold for £5 15s.]
Ladies: 5

[The portrait of Lucy Harrington, Countess of Bedford, sold for £9.]

Making a total of 115.

They sold for much less in the aggregate than their original cost to Colonel Durrant.
THE DELABERE COPY OF THE BAZILIΩLOGIA

The following list of portraits from the Baziliωlogia gives the names of purchasers, prices realized, and an abbreviated description. It is to be assumed that the portraits of kings are in the Baziliωlogia states, as hereinbefore described, where only the names are given. I have, in the case of the portraits of William I, Henry VIII, and Elizabeth, added the type letter in brackets.

The sale included only the portraits herein described, the title-page of the catalogue (a copy of which is in the British Museum) being as follows:

A Catalogue of a most singular, rare and valuable Collection of Portraits by the Passes, Delaram, &c. &c. some of them unique: being the contents of a very celebrated book that has been preserved 150 years in the Delabere family, and is cited by the Rev. Mr. Grainger. Most of them very brilliant impressions, and in the finest condition. Which will be sold by auction by Mr. Christie, at his Great Room, Pall Mall, on Friday, March 29, 1811, at one o'clock. to be viewed, and catalogues had in Pall Mall.

APPENDIX E

LIST IN LOWNDES’ "BIBLIOGRAPHER’S MANUAL OF ENGLISH LITERATURE," BOHN’S EDITION, 1851-64.

In the "Bibliographer’s Manual of English Literature," by William Thomas Lowndes (new edition, revised, corrected and enlarged by Henry G. Bohn), under the title of "Elstrack, R.," is the following:

ELSTRACK, R. Twenty-eight Portraits of Kings and Queens of England from William to Elizabeth. Folio, with an engraved title, having at the head miniatures of K. James, and Anne, his Queene.

"The first impressions were printed also with the name of Compton Holland, the publisher. The frontispiece was afterwards used for the Earl of Monmouth's Translation of Biondus' History of the Civil Wars of York and Lancaster, 1641; but the heads named were erased and those of King Charles and Henrietta Maria substituted. The Portraits were subsequently used for Florus Anglicus or Lives of the Kings of England, folio; and a third time for Martyn's History of the Kings of England, 1631-1638 folio; in both these works the letter-press is at the back of the portraits, and the impressions bad. Copies of this series have occurred with many other portraits of the nobility and great personages of the period, extending to upwards of 200, including all those belonging to Holland, Baziluo-logia."

The Delabere volume (—— heads) sold at Christie's for 650/. The volume erroneously called the Earl of Fife's (158 heads) 542. 15s. A series of 100 at Stewart's 182., 202l. 18s. 6d. See Holland.

There are a number of errors in the above—for instance, the portraits did not appear in "Florus Anglicus," but "Florus Britannicus." Also the dates of Martyn's Histories were 1628 and 1638.

Under the title of Holland is the following:

Holland, Henry. Baziliologia: A Booke of Kings; beeing the true and liuely Effigies of all our English Kings, from the Conquest vntill this present; with their seuerall Coats of Armes, Impresses and Devises. And a briefe Chronologie of their Liues and Deaths. Elegantly graven on Copper. Printed for H. Holland, and are to be sold by Compton Holland, 1618. folio.

Copies of this work are in the British Museum, Bodleian Library, etc. That in the Bodleian contains many valuable additional portraits of British and Foreign nobility, and some of extraordinary characters. Several copies have at different times been cut up, and sold by public auction; one by Stewart in 1812, another by Sotheby, Jan. 28, 1822; and a third by Stewart, Wheatley, and Adlard, Feb. 28, 1827. The prices vary very much, according to the impressions. Collation (without the additional portraits):

1. A frontispiece containing the title, with portraits of K. James and Q. Anne. R. E. sculpsit. £1 7s. £1 17s. The portraits of James and Anne were erased, and those of Charles I and Henrietta Maria inserted in the later impressions, in which state the copper was used by inserting a fresh title for Lord Monmouth's translation of Biondi's "Civil Wars of England."
2. William the Conqueror. R. Elstracke sculpsit. £1 11s. 6d. 10s.
3. William Rufus. R. E. sculp. £1 11s. 6d. 10s.
5. Stephen. Are to be sold by Compton Holland. £1 12s. £1.

32. Charles, Prince of great Britaine and Ireland. Simon Passæus delin. et sculp. Compton Holland excudit. 11s. 6d. £4 4s.

Nos. 15, 16, 24, and 28 are not to be found in the British Museum Copy.

The Baziliologia appears to be complete in thirty-two portraits above enumerated, but the volume which contains them usually has many additional ones by the same engravers, Elstracke, Simon, or Wm. Pass Delaram, Vaughan, etc., generally published by Compton Holland, Sudbury, or Humble. How numerous these sometimes are may be seen under Elstrack, at page 735. We will here enumerate a few of the rarer and most valuable of what are recognized as forming the additions, with the prices at which they have been sold, without giving the exact titles, for which we have no space. Most of these rare portraits have been copied by Woodburn or Richardson.

James IV, K. of Scots. Sold by Compton Holland. £3 13s. 6d. £3.

INDEX

In this Index the Baziliologia Royal Portraits are only noted twice. The first reference is to the page on which the Portraits are described in their several states, and on the next preceding page one of the states is reproduced. The second reference notes the pages in Appendices A, B, C, and E, on which early sale prices are given. To note every page on which these portraits are mentioned would only lead to confusion. The other portraits, which are reproduced, are duly noted under their names. The portraits, other than those properly belonging to the Baziliologia, and only mentioned in the Appendices, are not noted herein; the Appendices can readily be consulted for information relating thereto. Further, I have not indexed the items in the Bibliography, unless mentioned in other places.
